

Well-being Conversations 2026

About this conversation

We want to hear from children and young people about what it's like to grow up and live in the County – what's good, what's difficult, and what needs to change. What you tell us will help shape the Well-being Assessment for 2026 and influence the decisions made by the Council and other public services. Your views matter – this is your chance to help shape the future.

Why should I get involved?

Your experiences help adults understand what life is really like for young people today. What you tell us will help improve services, shape decisions about schools, transport, mental health, leisure and the environment, and make sure future plans work for young people, not just adults.

The Big Questions

1. What's good about living in the County?

Think about the things that make life better for young people. What do you enjoy? Where do you feel safe or welcome? What works well?

2. What would you like life to be like in the future?

Think about your future or a child born today. What should school, work, communities and services be like?

3. What makes life harder for young people?

What worries young people? What feels unfair? What doesn't work well?

4. What needs to change — and what would success look like?

What would make the biggest difference? Who needs to help? How would you know things had improved?

How can young people take part?

You can write answers, talk as a group, draw pictures or mind maps, use post-it notes, or vote on ideas. Adults supporting sessions should listen, avoid judgement and record views in young people's own words.

What happens next?

Your views will be combined with other engagement and used to shape the Well-being Assessment. A summary will show how young people's voices influenced decisions. The final assessment will be published in Spring 2027.
